Instructions for Authors

Scholars presenting papers at the annual meeting of the GAH are invited to submit their papers to the Journal of the Georgia Association of Historians. The Journal is a refereed publication. Not all papers submitted will be accepted, and it is not unusual for authors to be asked to make revisions. Submission of papers not presented at the annual convention is also welcomed.

Submission: Articles may be submitted throughout the year, but there is a deadline of one month after the meeting (usually about the end of March) to be sure of inclusion in that annual volume. Send the article as an attachment in Microsoft Word to Mark Smith at smithm01@fvsu.edu.

Style: Papers should be double-spaced throughout, and references should be done as end notes. The JGAH uses Kate Turabian, A Manual for Writers, 8th Ed., for citation, though with some variation (for instance only place and date of publication are required). Some sample notes are provided on the back of the page for your convenience. Notes should be numbered consecutively through the manuscript, and titles italicized (not underlined).

When preparing the final version of the article, please keep formatting as simple as possible. Use of `del` or `suppress` commands may interfere with the formatting of the manuscript for the printer. Indenting should always be done with the `tab` or `indent` keys/commands, not with the automatic first line indent or with the space bar. The program regards individual spaces as flexible for justification, which may change in preparation for printing. Do not use block protection. An author's inability to submit on disk will have no effect on acceptance of his/her essay for inclusion in the JGAH.

Sample notes as Guides for Submission to J.G.A.H.

1. Martin van Creveld, Technology and War (New York, 1989), 101.

2. Ibid., 111.

3. Thomas W. Heyck, The Peoples of the British Isles: A New History, 2 vols. (Belmont, CA, 1992), 2: 58.

4. Charles Tilly, "Britain Creates the Social Movement," in Social Conflict and the Political Order in Modern Britain, ed. by James E. Cronin and Jonathan Schneer (New Brunswick, NJ, 1982), 25-26.

5. Daniel W. Hollis, "The Crown Lands and the Financial Dilemma in Stuart England," Albion, 26 (Fall, 1994): 423-25.

6. Creveld, 109.

7. Hollis, 426.

[A shortened title should be added to a secondary citation if two works by an author are used or two authors being cited have the same name.]

8. Times (London), 18 July 1850.

[If the city of publication is part of a newspaper's title, there is, of course, no need to add it parenthetically.]

COPYRIGHT INFORMATION FOR AUTHORS AND RELEASE FORM

The U.S. copyright law effective January, 1978, requires explicit transfer of copy right from author to publisher (previously implicit in the submission of a manuscript) to enable the publisher to have consistent copyright protection and right to disseminate the author's work. Therefore, the following agreement, executed and signed by the author, is required with each manuscript.

If you wish your paper, abstract, or commentary to be considered for publication, fill in and sign this sheet and return it to the editor. (If you wish only the abstract of the paper to be published, mark out the words "article and" in the first sentence below, leaving on "The abstract entitled . . ." and mark out other instances of the word "article.")

TRANSFER OF COPYRIGHT AGREEMENT

(Must be signed and returned to the J.G.A.H. editor before the manuscript can be considered for publication.)

The article and abstract entitled _____ is herewith submitted for publication in the Journal of the Georgia Association of Historians. It has not been previously published. If and when the article or abstract is accepted for publication, I, as author, hereby agree to transfer to the Georgia Association of Historians all rights under existing copyright laws except for the following:

1. The right to make further copies of the published article or abstract for use in classroom teaching;
2. The right to re-use all or part of this material in a compilation of my own works or in a textbook of which I am the author;
3. The right to make copies of the published article or abstract for internal distribution within the institution that employs me, or for other noncommercial, nonprofit purposes that do not affect the potential market for or value of the article.

I agree that copies made under these circumstances, including translations and adaptations, will carry the copyright notice that appeared in the original published work, the Journal of the Georgia Association of Historians. I further agree that all statements and opinions in my article and abstract are my own and are not necessarily shared by the G.A.H. or the editors of the Journal.
